

Guide To Personal Social Posts

Suggested social post structure based on the 2020-21 Ad Council campaign to encourage flu vaccination, in collaboration with AMA & CDC.

Your post on social media can help spread the word that no one has time to get sick with the flu – especially now. Each year flu causes millions of illnesses and hundreds of thousands of hospitalizations in the United States. Now is the time to get our flu shots to protect ourselves, protect our communities, and help healthcare workers save medical resources as they focus on caring for COVID-19 patients.

The Ask

Inspire your followers to get their flu shot by getting your flu shot and posting a picture of yourself with a band-aid on your upper, outside bicep. In the caption, share why you're getting your flu shot and remind people that now is the time to get their flu shot too. Encourage them to visit GetMyFluShot.org for more information, including where they can get the flu shot in their area.

Things To Do

- ✓ Do include an image of you at home or in a parked car with a band-aid on your bicep.
- ✓ Do show a band-aid placed on your upper bicep, on the outside of your arm.
- ✓ Do share why it's important to you, and why you don't have time for the flu.
- ✓ Include #NoTimeForFlu and #SleeveUp along with the URL: GetMyFluShot.org
- ✓ For posts in Spanish also include #CombateLaInfluenza and the URL: VacunateContraLaInfluenza.org

Things To Avoid

- Don't show yourself in public without wearing a mask and social distancing.
- Don't include brand logos.

elisainspo Stay healthy and happy — Este es un pequeño recordatorio para que aprovechen los últimos meses del año, con energía positiva y saludables - Get your Flu Shot/Vacúnate contra la influenza, si pueden hacerlo no lo duden, así se cuidan y a sus familias 💙 we don't have time to get sick!!!
